FIELDS INAUGURATED AS GOVERNOR TODAY

COOLIDGE PAYS HONOR BY RADIO TO W. G. HARDING

President, Speaking in Interest of Memorial Association, Eulogizes His Predecessor in Address Last Night

$5 PER $1 000,000, THIS WEEK FOR MEMORIAL FUND

The Harding Memorial Association, a self perpetuating body headed by Mrs Harding, successor President Calvin Coolidge, has decided upon three fold memorial for the late president a suitable mausoleum purchase and preservation of Mr Harding home and the creation of a Warren G Harding Chair of Diplomacy and Functions of Government in some central university

To fulfill the people to the Harding Memorial Association is seeking three million dollars be patriotic contribution you may make, your donation the high your church, club, lodge, local chairman or any state or national headquarters Contributor of one dollar or more will receive a handsomely engraved certificate which will bear the individual name of the donor

It is in connection with this that President Coolidge spoke last night over the radio, on the character and attainments of his dead friend and predecessor

His address in full, heard by a number of local people last night follows

One of the brief poems that have touched the hearts of men is that wherein Leigh Hunt tells of the visit to earth recording the names of those who love the Lord

And lo my name there
Nay not so replied the angel
Then write he down he was told
As one who love his fellowmen
The angel came to show his list of those who love the Lord—
And lo the name of him who loved his fellow men led all the rest

His Love Loved Fellow Men

It will be hard to find a better epitaph than this of President Harding, the man we lived and mourn He loved his fellow men, and they knew it they loved and trusted him His whole life from the time of that cheerful mother who had an inspired faith in him, down to the day when a sorrowing world laid its tributes at his bier, was a continuous testimony to his devotion to them and to their faith in him

Some will say that such a sweet and gentle nature could only have a part in its setting and the opportunity for service in a strange and perilous time Perhaps they are right Yet he came to the world's stage in an hour when it seemed as for other characters The captains and kings of the times and the navies, the men who would have war, and the men who would have peace, had long dominated the scene Where among them could place he made could ever be found for this kind, gentle, gracious soul

Yet he found his place He crushed the ear of a war mad world He called our country back to paths of peace, and gladly it came He beckoned the nations to come and sit in council He pointed them the way to peace He set example of readiness to cast away the sword from the arm of might He sought for men and nations a peace—the only true and lasting peace—based on justice and right He stood first and firm for his own country, then for mankind His sincerity and frankness won to his side those who sensed the great truth of human brotherhood So he led the way to the monumental accomplishment of the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament

Always Steady and Direct

The same simplicity and directness marked his program in domestic affairs His was the steady strong if spiring hand of guidance and helpfulness It was never the mailed fist of compulsion He knew that the greatest need of the world was peace with industry and production He asked for these, and with them for thrift and the will to make these lasts that had been inflicted in the years of strife He called his countrymen to set an example of these homely virtues, and they did He gave without remorse of his own strength down into the tragic end He rose above misunderstandings and

He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy.—Prov 29 1

A STUBBORN mind convinces as little to wisdom or even to knowledge as a stubborn temper to happiness—so others

PROSPECTS FOR CITY SEWERS

The news that tentative steps have been taken which will probably result in the ultimate construction of an adequate sewer system in Middlesboro is gratifying to thousands of residents here Lack of such facilities has constituted a drawback to the expansion and growth of the city for the past two decades and need, the condition has become a standing menace to public health

A very elaborate and at that time costly sewer system was inaugurated in the early days of the town, old residents will tell you, and the plans, like many other worthy undertakings when the financial crash came The job has been one that previous administrations have dodged on account of the long and tedious work necessary and the expense which taxpayers were perhaps unwilling to bear The present administration headed by Mayor Hal Keeney, is leaving indelible marks in civic annals by the inauguration of the work

As we understand it present sewer lines only the business district and a very small portion of the residential section So many requests for sewer connections by property owners for the extensions that it would be seen that there will be no serious opposition to any expense attending the work

Middlesboro is already growing, rapid building statistics increased assessments and advance in property values so eloquently testify With proper sewage facilities installed we may expect a building boom such as the city has never experienced

The completion of the work already begun will make of Middlesboro the splendid town that we all want it to be

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Unfilled order books are showing the thumb marks of careful study The stories they tell vary somewhat but taking into consideration present seasonal tendencies the final figures for 1922 are not generally disappointing

Smaller lot but more frequent purchasing is much in evidence The principal reason back of this policy may be summed up in two words—efficient transportation Buyers know that they can have goods delivered on comparatively short notice therefore, they put off buying longer than customary a few years ago Perhaps more than ever before production is being gauged by forward buying while forward buying in turn, is measured by consumptive requirements

With the closer relationship between production, distribution, and consumption, there apparently has arisen a sensitiveness to rumors both good and bad a sensitiveness which possibly has been overdeveloped

While production in certain lines has slackened during recent months business certainly is not at a low point It was not to be expected that production would hold to the activity of the summer season when newly established records became so common as to cause little surprise Rather it was anticipated that with the fall and winter months would come a slower and probably more enduring rate of speed Present conditions justify the wisdom of this farsightedness and at the same time bear testimony to the underlying strength of industry as a whole to the stability of our financial system, to the ability of buyers to purchase what they need and to the consumptive requirements of the country in the face of a minimum purchasing power from Europe

If you are a rubber manufacturer a steel manufacturer, or a coal operator how business is he is likely to report that it is not very satisfactory What he really means is that he is not making the profits he feels he ought to make He is still employing a practically full complement of men however, is not reducing salaries, and is doing a large volume of business This is true of many lines other than those mentioned, and the money that the well employed are spending indicates that business in the United States, taken as a whole is good

—Monthly Business Review

Oh, what fathers say and do
Then they try, with all their might
To make their children do
What they think is right

Will you send all foreign enemy germs to Germany? Give him the proper address

If one wants a home neighbor you can give his little boy a drum

The United States, not the hardest hit parts of their coasts

Wool will give fathers Give him a pair for gloves to be worn while opening Christmas bills

A hot water bottle makes a swell gift for a wife, and besides it will keep her feet warm at night

Give her an imported hair brush if she wears imported hair

Umbrellas make good gifts because you can't know them back

A watch you can write your name on the back of Hope you get time!

Get her telephone stand for Christmas and help some friend stand her telephone

Candlesticks make good Christmas gifts The big heavy kind is better for fathers

Ask her if she wants to make a long distance call

Ask her if there is anything she has set her heart on

Electric irons do not make the wife or knock a husband out like the heavy ones

On marking up a price tag always be sure the person who receives the gift will not exchange

Hide the children's presents with their school books so they can't get to find them

In some cases suit cases will suit as gifts

Towels are nice, clean gifts Some kids get what they want while others get sensible presents

Christmas artificial flowers They last much longer than the other ones

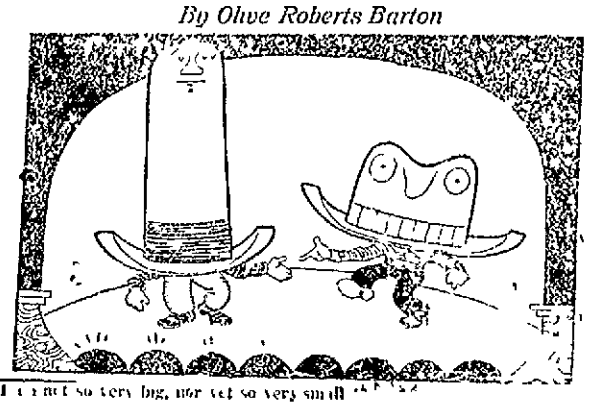
A wise man and his money soon buy Christmas gifts

Just a short time now and we will be writing 1923 in mistake and rubbing it out to put 1924

It will soon be time for new resolutions We call them new, but they are old ones made over

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



It was not so very big, nor yet so very small

This was the next riddle the Riddle Lady asked

I'm sometimes very hot and sweet and sour and small,
Sometimes I am flat and then again I'm tall,
Sometimes I am stout, but often I'm a thief
And I come in and out of all from a little bitty leaf

I don't like hot potatoes, I much prefer cold pie
And yet I'm one of the foods I always like to buy
My friends always say I'm a sight when I'm seldom like a drop
My friends say it's seem riddle how I come out on top

I cannot run I never race but if the truth be said,
No matter where I promenade I'm always on a bed
I'm quiet in my habits, on sea or air or land
Put in a warm place often I feel grand

Now I'm no doubt will make you laugh I bet my head,
But wait, my friends, and spare your chaff, I have a crown instead
I never eat I never drink to keep in proper trim,
And yet in nine times out of ten, I'm filled up to the brim

Dear dear declared the Wise Man to Ned I never heard such a hard riddle in all my life I just know I can't guess it I might try jumping into a puddle like or two and take my wits with me Do you know

Ned shook his head No I don't I can't guess it either

Humpty Dumpty had the investigation and broken it I mean he really didn't break it he interrupted I've not my wits with me told said he pompously I'll have been told to keep away from those walls but nobody ever told me to keep away from riddles I think they're very hard to crack walls and time might be able to crack very hard

Nancy was trying hard to think She loved riddles and hated to give up

Suddenly a sweet voice from Fairyland Nancy knew her by the way she wore her hair and her dainty little slippers She had just come to Riddle Joy and he had heard the Riddle Lady's riddle

I just came from a party he explained You've heard of the Dormouse and the Mad Hatter and the March Hare and how they entertained the Inventor

At that an idea popped into Nancy's head It's a hat! Its a hat! The answer is a hat he screamed

And so it was, my dears!

But I still think that Alice couldn't help thinking that Nancy was a trifle rude, for she never did answer her question

If hell is paved with good intention
It will be repaired New Year

We swear off on New Year and if I find that we swear off too on

Mama's come home, up one of six
Let's strikings for mine

Would it have been John in an unguarded moment if Ruth has come to that moment either of the days we mentioned I asked scarcely for I was very sorry to this time

Surely even the most fool of men must realize that Ruth Illington could so remorselessly starve just because her lifelong friend husband has not only betrayed all his friends but his trust her as well Suppose Ruth did have a little money that she had given away from the merest sum Harry Illington had given her It was her right Do you suppose she should have given it up to his creditors presumably to whitewash a reputation that was lovely in reality Would we, for instance, have taken as something rightfully belonging, to us the very moment he depended upon to open little business wherein he might make an honest living, after life had been shattered into bits by a dirty scoundrel

Of course not Leslie I am just telling you what people are saying

Then when they say it to you, tell it is up to you to say to them just what I have been telling you

Everybody doesn't say that, Leslie More people are saying that Walter Burke gave her the money

Well let's look at that without prejudice When Harry Illington left his wife without a cent and she had no way to turn, and all you men who had befriended him declined to befriend the woman he had betrayed even worse than he had you—

Hold on, Leslie she never came to me for anything, interrupted Jack

Of course she didn't come to you for anything And knowing her as I do, I know she probably did not go to Walter Burke for anything But you must have known she was penniless We will put the case a little different Suppose your friend, Sydney Carlton, had left Paula Perier without a cent, isn't it just as possible that you might have felt you should do something for the poor girl

Jack, who was standing by the mantel, dropped heavily into a chair My God Leslie, what do you mean by that

But exactly what I was would you advise either Ruth Illington to starve rather than to take me from a friend I'll never entertain a thought of it Of course I'm terribly upset, but I tell you I'd rather I were in Ruth's place than all the rest of everything I could think of the worst and I've had one of the men I knew crook in order to set me up in business I think Ruth has been extraordinarily brave and I'm going to stand by her through thick and thin

Well I never did like her

I can't help whether you like her or not Jack you have been my friend that I don't like and some time, to return now that I've done, but you must see I can't help it I don't see how Sydney Carlton can think he is going to get out of his matter Now he has gone to Hollywood Even if he marries that girl, with all the scrap there has been about her, surely he can't bring her back here

My God in God! How women do jump at conclusions she shuddered as he went out the door

TOMORROW Ruth Illington calls up Leslie Prescott—Telling advantage of a secret

Berton Braley's Poem

METHODS

My way of doing things seems queer
No doubt, to you
But your ways in my eyes appear
Quite puzzling, too

You see the hole of some other cuss
Are wholly strange to both of us

Yet I do fairly well what I
Set out to do
And my unwork—well I can't deny
You see it through

And peering of that other one
He also gets his labors done

If I tried working on your plan
It's true
How I tried mine—oh man, oh man!
It would not do

You way for you and mine for me
Success I bet's a let 'em be!

WHAT IT WILL BE FOR HER

List to my tale! I'm the mother of eight—
Oh, what a fate! Oh, what a fate!
Waiting on youngsters from early till late,
Even at Christmas can't slacken my gait,
Washing their faces and brushing hair,
Handing out rations till all have a share,
Tying on bibs and arranging each chair,
Quelling disturbances soon as they flare.

Telling them tales while I lace up their shoes,
Getting out toys that will tend to amuse,
Searching for playthings the dear kiddies lose,
Running to pay to milkman his dues,
Putting on nighties, and tucking in cribs,
Bidding them never be cute or tell fibs
Then with their stockings all hung in a row,
Off into dreamland they peacefully go.

I the perpetual-motion machine,
Potter till everything's tidy and clean,
And as a treat and with Christmas Eve zest,
Work till the tree is erected and dressed
All up in tinsel and candles galore,
Then stack up the toys in a pile on the floor—
Is it a wonder I'm lanky and lean?
I'm a perpetual-motion machine!

Miss Marie Wormen and Willie Berkley of the West End were married at Cumberland Gap at 7:30 Saturday night, the ceremony being performed by Magistrate R. W. Brooks. The couple will make their home in the West End.

Two Local Girls On Musical Program

The names of two talented young Middlesboro girls, Miss Mary Charles Wood, daughter of Judge and Mrs. C. A. Wood, and Miss Laura Gunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gunn, students at Hamilton College in Lexington, appear on the program of the Beethoven Club of the College last week. The following is from a Lexington paper:

The Beethoven Club of Hamilton Tuesday afternoon, at which time the College held its November meeting class in music appreciation, under the direction of Miss Judith Storlie, of the music faculty, presented a very interesting and instructive program on "Folk Music and Its Place in the Development of Art Music." Miss Mary Charles Wood read a paper on "Folk Songs of Other Nations," and illustrations were sung by Miss Katherine Lewis. She sang "Kelvin Grove" (Scotch); "Oh, Susa, Little Susa" (German); "Oh, No John, No;" (English); "Santa Lucia" (Italian), and a Russian "Harvest Song."

Miss Laura Gunn read a paper on "Primitive American Music." There being no typical American folk song, she mentioned Negro and Indian folk music. As illustrations Miss Katherine Lewis sang, "I'm So Glad Trouble Don't Last Always" and "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water," by Cadman, and Miss Mary Charles Wood played "From an Indian Lodge," by MacDowell.

Following the program the club tea and social hour was held on the sun porch.

Woman's Club Hears Miss Elizabeth Jackson

The Woman's Club has been invited to have a meeting at the Grace Nettleton Home and inspect the orphanage as soon as East End streets are completed. The invitation was extended to the club yesterday afternoon by Miss Elizabeth Jackson, superintendent of the home, yesterday afternoon, during her talk before the club.

Miss Jackson said that she had a copy of resolutions drawn up by the local club ten years ago pledging support to Grace Nettleton and that the club had lived up to those resolutions. There has been no sickness among the children this year, Miss Jackson says.

A straw vote was taken by the club as requested by the president of the general federation of clubs. The counted vote is to be sent to the Good House Keeping Magazine in answer to the article in last month's number "Stand Up and be Counted!"

Calendars will be sold during January in interest of the $50,000,000 good roads movement. Mrs. R. L. Maddox is in charge of this action by the club.

Mrs. T. D. Arnold read an interesting report of the state Library association meeting at Covington. Mrs. Ardent of the association for the coming nold was elected second vice-president year.

Names of the children at Grace Nettleton home were drawn by club members for Christmas presents.

The next meeting will be in January and will be a joint business and social meeting with the public school teachers as special guests.

News From Pineville

BIG M. E. CHURCH REVIVAL CLOSES

Pronounced One of Most Successful in Years—Talk of Uniting 2 Methodist Churches

PINEVILLE, Dec. 11.—The recent revivn held at the First M. E. Church has proven, according to the pastor and members of business men in the city, to be one of the best that has ever been held here. The Rev. C. E. Yoder, pastor at Berea, and the Rev. Rice of Poor Fork conducted the services of the meeting.

The Rev. Rice had charge of all the singing and has proven himself an able leader. He was pastor of this church here seven years ago and met many of his old friends and acquaintances while here. Rev. Rice said in regard to the meeting, "I think that the whole town has been strengthened and has been the recipient of a great religious awakening, the best that they have had in years." Many of the business men of the city spoke of the real Christian standards that the pastor had upheld in the services.

The church was always crowded to its capacity, and on the last night of the meeting, over a score of people were turned away. Between twenty and twenty-five additions will be the direct result of the meeting, while nearly forty people made decisions and will join other churches in the vicinity.

The Christian, Presbyterian and M. E. Church, South, dismissed both their mid-week and Sunday night services during the revival.

The M. E. Church, South, has no building of their own to worship in at the present and they are meeting at an old church building. There is sentiment toward the consolidation of the First M. E. Church and the M. E. Church, South, here. The General Conference of the former church will meet this spring in Springfield, Mass., and will consider the proposition. If the action is passed on the M. E. Church, South, will call a special conference to accept the plans. This would no doubt be a splendid move as it would strengthen both churches.

The $7,000 parsonage of the First M. E. Church will soon be completed and the pastor and his family will move in near the first of the year. The parsonage has eight rooms all modern conveniences. The basement will be used as a recreational and community meeting hall for the church. The next revival will probably be held in March, with the Rev. W. H. Howard, pastor of the First Methodist Church of New Albany, Ind., leading the work.

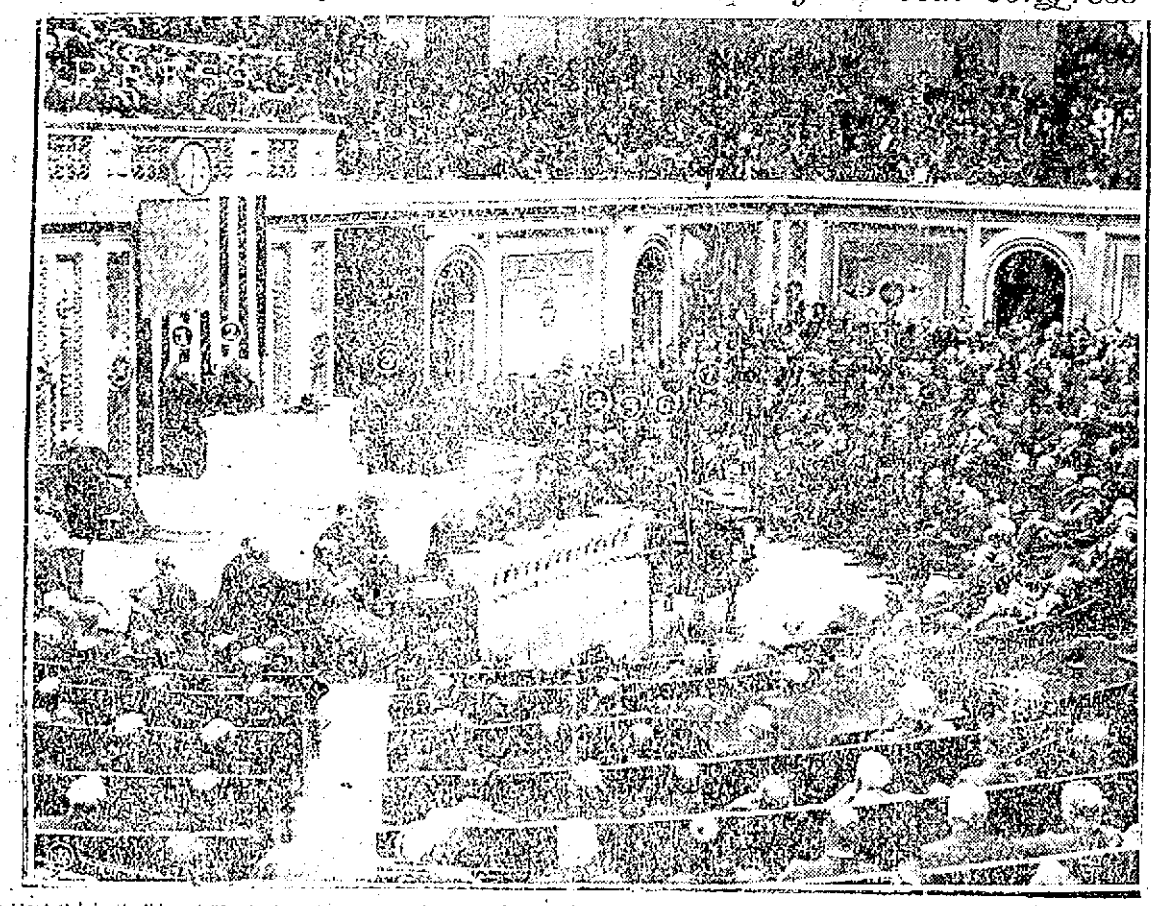
President Coolidge Delivers His First Message to 68th Congress



President Calvin Coolidge at 31 minutes after noon on Dec. 6 delivered his first address before a joint session of Congress. The chamber was packed. The figures in the above photograph indicate the following: (1) Senator Albert B. Cummins, president of the Senate; (2) Representative Frederick H. Gillett, speaker of the House; (3) President Coolidge (note microphones on desk before him through which his voice was broadcast throughout the nation); (4) Secretary of War Weeks; (5) Secretary of Treasury Mellon; (6) Secretary of State Hughes; (7) Secretary of Navy Denby.

Your Health

OCCUPATION AND HEALTH

Glancing through the American Contractor the other day, I was struck with the thought of the great influence of certain kinds of work on the health of the individual. The plumbing situation was up for discussion.

The educational director of the plumbing and heating industry gives us some things to attract our attention. In spite of the large wage attached to the job, the craft of plumbing is losing workers rapidly. If the present rate of loss continues, according to the author, in a matter of a century the genus plumber will be found only in the story book or the museum.

Here is a health warning for the public. A large city only recently wound up a ten year fight for the health and sanitary sewerage disposal by decreeing that all outside privy vaults should be removed and modern plumbing installed in two years. But there were not enough plumbers to do the work. The improvements have to wait and ill health continues from the unsanitary conditions, on account of loss of workers from the trades.

This is true of other trades as well. Officials report that during the last two years, in 17 building trades, there has been a loss of 60,000 workers.

Another phase of the health situation is this:

A news item contains the information that building costs are so high, principally on account of labor shortage, that thousands of would-be home builders are living in cramped quarters. The health of these families is suffering.

Evidently the workers have sought some other field of endeavor. They have left the trades for the so-called white-collar jobs. Muscles and manhood are twin brothers. The health of our nation demands an educated manual labor. The lifeblood of our country must rally for health or we perish.

COLORED WASHERWOMAN GETS BEST CHRISTMAS CLUB CHECK

The other night there was put into the postoffice 1200 Christmas Club checks, aggregating about twenty thousand dollars. The smallest check was for one cent. The largest was for three hundred and fifty dollars. The penny check, that belonged to a little fellow, who, in the excitement of the Christmas time, brought it in and opened an account, with golden dreams of a big check next year. But he forgot, and the little penny stayed where he put it until time for it to start on its lonesome trip the other day. No other pennies had come to keep him company. The three hundred and fifty dollar check. No, it didn't belong to one of our townspeople who receive a fat salary check every month. It didn't belong to one of our prosperous merchants. It didn't belong to any of our professional people, the doctors or lawyers or teachers or preachers or insurance people or government folks or the newspaper folks or even the bank folks, themselves. No, it went to a colored woman, and, when you read her name down a little farther, some of you will say, "why, I know her. She washes clothes for us." And you'll be right, for thats just who the largest depositor in the 1923 Christmas Club was, Nannie Miller, a colored washwoman of your town. She didn't save it by putting in large amounts at irregular intervals, she did it systematically, week in and week out, and the result was a $350 check. Yes, we all wish it was ours, or rather, not wanting to appear covetious, that we had one just like it, and a great many of us can next Christmas by beginning right now contributed.

WITNESS FIELDS' INAUGURATION

that our public roads system is one of the most important systems of transportation we pledge ourselve to the construction of an adequate system of public roads throughout the state and this construction must proceed under efficient and economical methods

Fourth, we promised a more equitable system of taxation, which would place the burdens of taxation equally and equitably upon the wealth of the state No state can prosper as it should with discord tory and inequitable system of taxation

Fifth, we promised proper economy in the administration of the affairs of the state government That obligation is binding on every official and every employee of the government and must be fulfilled

Duty to Democracy

[illegible] used to say the duty [illegible] resources This [illegible] dependable contribution [illegible] of the state [illegible] more able [illegible] of cooperative marketing [illegible] products This is [illegible] concrete to the agricultural [illegible] of the state

[illegible] pledged to enact legislation [illegible] roads are clean elections [illegible] The principle of [illegible] upon which our institutions can be preserved only [illegible] use of the ballot [illegible] party or any candidate [illegible] who can do so honorably [illegible] or candidate has [illegible] through fraudulent [illegible] laws should be so [illegible] to [illegible] the enforcement [illegible] numerous to be [illegible]

We promised the road engineer made in the campaign applied to the enforcement of the laws, and no promise people with greater force Therefore, the governor and every other public official is pledged to the fulfillment of that obligation, and as my initial official act I call upon every official of the state whose duty it is to administer or execute the laws, to rigidly observe that obligation to the people And as the chief law enforcement officer of the state I seek the assistance of every law abiding citizen in the enforcement of the laws With the assistance of the people, the rigid enforcement of the laws will be made easy without their assistance and co operation law enforcement will be more difficult

Asks Help of People

We waged our fight before the people upon these principles and they accepted them in no uncertain terms We, therefore, entered into a definite contract with the people which binds the public official on the one side and the private citizen on the other

I speak advisedly when I say that the result of the recent election places upon every citizen the obligation of aiding in the fulfillment of the contract entered into by and between the public officials and the people, because we are a government by majority rule and regardless of pre election differences, the will of the majority as expressed through the sacred exercise of the elective franchise becomes binding with equal force upon the minority It is the obedience of the minority to the will of the majority that guarantees the soundness of our institution and their perpetuity If the time shall ever come when the minority will not be willing to submit to and obey that when decision had been reached the will of the majority, then the security of our institutions will be of its end a lesson in the value of one another and their perpetuity We mourn him today and we shall ever remember him so long as remembrance of his public service, to set themselves to the task holds before us the picture of his purity of fulfilling all obligations incurred thereby forbearance, faith and Christian tolerance The [illegible] in the recent election

I assume the duties of the office of Chief Executive fully conscious of the trust the people have responded in me and of the obligations imposed upon me In assuming the task that lies before me I earnestly request the assistance of the good people and invoke the guidance of Almighty God If I am favored with the assistance and the impartial unselfish advice of the good people of the state and with divine guidance in the performance of the tasks that must necessarily confront me I can not fail without such assistance I cannot succeed I, therefore, appeal to each and every citizen to recognize and discharge the obligation of personal service to the state that we love, not one obligation, but all obligations to the end that each may contribute to the position that she has a right to occupy and that, by reason of location, wealth and intelligence she ought to occupy

HARDING HONORED BY COOLIDGE

masrepresentations, but he was curiously incapable of hard feeling toward those who were unfair with him In a time when the minds of many men were prone to seize upon hurried conclusions he held back and dared to take his time and thought before decision He was free from the pride of opinion but strong in the determination of conviction He had that calm courage which could not be moved, but that was firm and unwilling to submit to and obey that when decision had been reached

His life became, in the tragic sorrow of its end a lesson in the value of personal loss. Seldom indeed has any man's death left that feeling among so many He was mourned abroad and at home The conviction was felt everywhere that he was one of the best fitted to serve a distracted world in a difficult period of its history

But he was not permitted to finish his task He broke and went under its load In the hour of sorrow for his loss, men and women were moved to a broader charity, a relaxation of partisan excesses a determination to be fair and moderate and reasonable

His Accomplishments Seen

He was criticized because his own country, under his leadership did not move forward so fast as some wished But when worn out by the struggles he had so bravely borne, he laid down the burden, his critics saw clearly what his leadership had accomplished They saw that it had been a leadership forward and upward, in an era when most other countries were moving backward and downward They saw that prosperity smiled once more on a favored land They saw that prosperity and material well being were some how strangely rare in other lands So they came to realize what his modest, unassuming leadership had wrought for his country

It was natural that such a character, passing from the stage of life, should leave the multitude a sense of personal loss. Seldom indeed has any man's death left that feeling among so many He was mourned abroad and at home The conviction was felt everywhere that he was one of the best fitted to serve a distracted world in a difficult period of its history

But he was not permitted to finish his task He broke and went under its load In the hour of sorrow for his loss, men and women were moved to a broader charity, a relaxation of partisan excesses a determination to be fair and moderate and reasonable

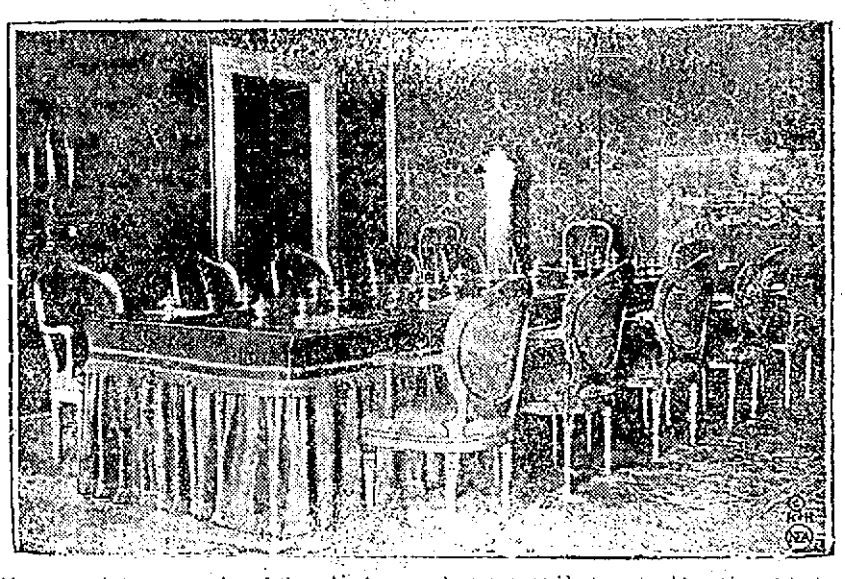
First Pictures Taken Inside the Vatican at Rome

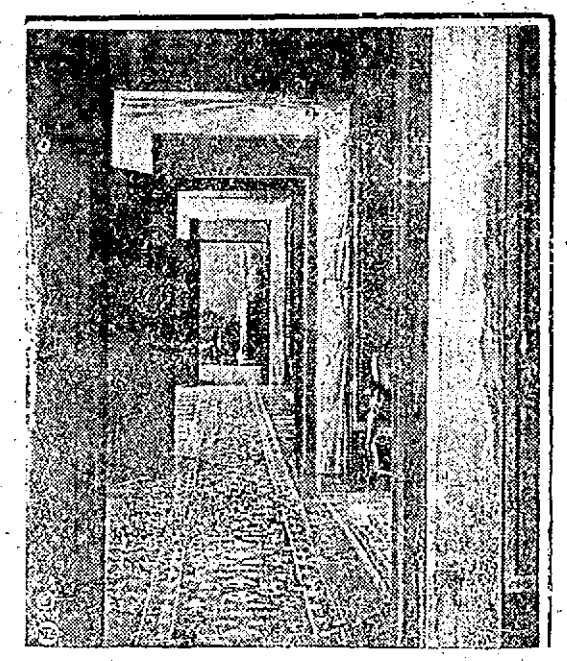
These are FIRST and EXCLUSIVE photographs of the interior of the Vatican at Rome. They show innermost recesses of the papal palace, the Pope's secret chambers, conference rooms, etc. They're the most remarkable series of their kind ever taken.

These photographs were taken after negotiations extending over many months. Pope Pius gave special permission to enter parts of the Vatican where a camera had never been before.

His Holiness Pope Pius XI does not seem to have aged any since his election to the high office.



This may remind you somewhat of the cabinet room where our president meets his chief advisors. The photo shows the private meeting room where the Pope confers with the Cardinals, and affairs of the Catholic world are settled.

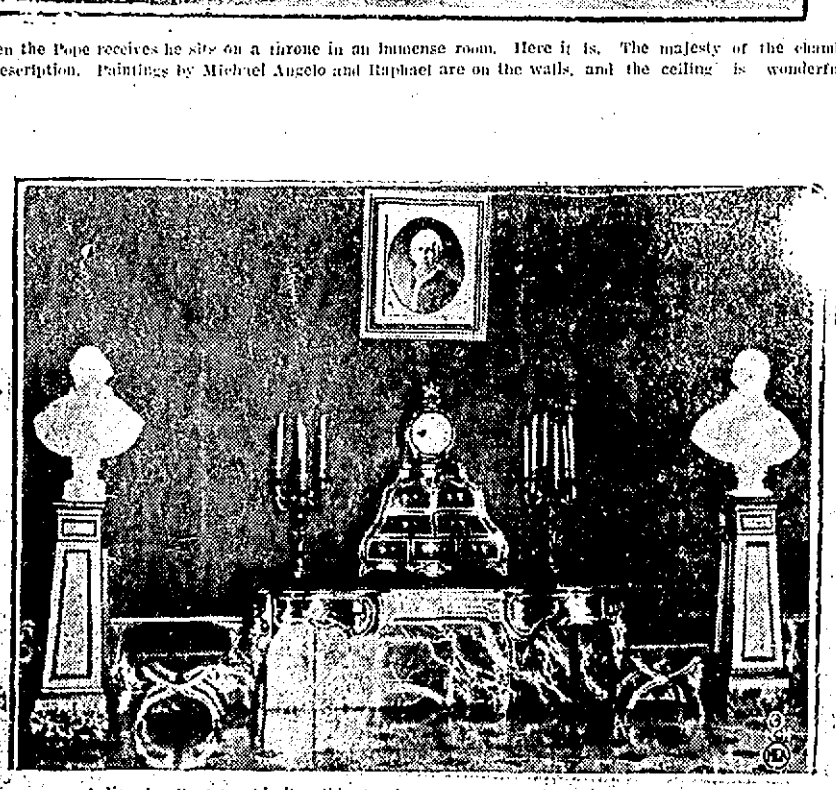


No picture could give you a clearer conception of the interior of the Vatican. Each room opens into another one, as the photo plainly shows.

When the Pope receives he sits on a throne in an immense room. Here it is. The majesty of the chamber defies description. Paintings by Michael Angelo and Raphael are on the walls, and the ceiling is wonderfully carved.

There even is a place for a Major Domo in the Vatican, and the Marquis Sacchetti fills that post.

The Pope's favorite, if not only, recreation is a walk through the beautiful Vatican gardens. He takes a genuine interest in them. This photograph shows him taking a walk, pointing out the gardening work to be done. He is accompanied by his walking companion, Mgr. Aborn Mell.



It never was believed a Pope would allow this chamber to be photographed for the outside public—but that has happened. It shows the secret anti-chamber of the Pope's private room.

Mgr. Pizzardo is the Pope's Secretary of State and Interior Affairs. His is a most important post in the church.

The Vatican Secretary of State and Exterior Affairs is Mgr. Borgongini Duca.

Into the beautiful walk the Pope often comes. It shows the Chapel Notre Dame de Lourdes in the Gardens.—Here His Holiness often prays in the course of a walk.
